through the

Las Vegas, NV, United States of America

10 to 14 November 2025

Ref. No.: EVT2405141

Information Sheet

Introduction

Operations at port facilities present unique challenges and include an extensive interface between security and safety arrangements, especially for the response to a radiation emergency triggered by a nuclear security event.

Objectives

To facilitate the exchange of information between Member States that are developing or revising their nuclear security measures or emergency response arrangements at ports.

Target Audience

The workshop is open to 35 participants from invited Member States. Designated participants should be responsible for detecting or responding to nuclear security-related events, incidents or emergencies at a port of entry, such as a shipping port, airport, or border crossing. The individual skills of candidates and the actual work they perform, as well as relevant background activities in their home countries, will be considered in the selection process. Preference will be given to candidates from specialized detection and response teams, especially multiagency response teams, and candidates who have a responsibility for training front-line responders.
